Changes of perspectives

Changes of perspectives

Europe goes mobile – Europe gets a face

The European commission supports education and learning opportunities in Europe over the EU-Education program Grundtvig with the aim to bring the general adult education ahead in Europe. It enables European cooperation, meetings and the exchange of people.

Grundtvig Workshops bring people of different nations together for an innovative multinational intercultural learning experiment.

It give impetus to the personal and professional development, access to individual interests and encourage participants to share actively their skills and views with others.

Contribute rather than consuming

We encourage all participants to make an active contribution. You bring your professional experience to inform about cultural and social peculiarities of your country and contribute with valuable suggestions, ideas and creativity to succeed in the Workshop. We offer the opportunity to meet and to exchange ideas for the development of personal and professional skills.

Every personal contribution not only supports the Workshop, but also contributes for the other participants to access cultural differences in order to promote professional exchange and bring Europe a bit more together.

Perspectives

The Workshop

This workshop is a special offer for teachers in literacy. It includes basic lessons in a foreign language, inclusive a new writing.

Feeling like "your" learners — without knowledge about reading and writing. By learning a foreign language and foreign types (e.g. with Arabic character) means, to be an illiterate oneself.

This is the guarantee for a better understanding of your own participants!

Searching for clues

Additionally we look for answers:

- What fonts are used within the EU?
- What effect does this have on the understanding of individuals in the European Community?

The interesting question is, in which countries are there already literacy offers?

And which offers?
